

Jonathan Alcorn

A photojournalist since 1988, Jonathan Alcorn began his career at his hometown paper, The Pasadena Star News. Since then, Jonathan has built an impressive and diverse freelance portfolio. He has worked with such prominent clients as People Magazine, Entertainment Weekly, the Washington Post, Greenpeace, and Toyota Motor sports. While he has consistently worked on assignment photographing celebrity portraits such as Queen Latifah, Ray Bradbury, and Academy Award-winner Adrian Brody, Jonathan was also the primary photographer for the Los Angeles Times' Pulitzer Prize-winning coverage of the 1994 Northridge earthquake. In addition, Jonathan's photo-essays have been featured in gallery exhibitions and he is currently working on a long-term project documenting life at an Alzheimer's care facility.